8:30-9:00	Broadcast to all labs	Welcome & announcements
9:00-10:00 SESSION I: Choose one of three sessions	Project Dev Lab Moore 155B	Session A: Fun Digital Games In and Out of Class When lessons are gamified, student motivation increases. This session will introduce a few digital games that you can play with your students in class or even assign as homework. These games all require knowledge of the language and some even need strategy to win! Ngan-Ha Ta (‘Iolani School)
	Diamond Head Lab Moore 153A	Session B: Session O’ Brain-Breaks Brain breaks are usually quick movement games, dancing, tongue twisters, yoga, zumba, or ball tossing activities in the target language. These targeted language activities help refocus the students’ brains and center them for more language acquisition. Brain breaks aren’t really “breaks” because students are still learning the targeted language through engaging activities. Brain breaks are essential to learning a second language! Will Smith (Waipahu High School) & Dania Hill (University Lab School)
	Ewa Lab Moore 153B	Session C: Fun with Pictures: Discussing Stories with Bitmojis and Fan-fiction with Historical People This session begins with a quick introduction to several designs and purposes for talking about pictures in the target languages. Evelyn Coffey will then lead a French discussion using BitMojis. Following, Reed Riggs will lead a Chinese discussion in which attendees co-create fan fiction around pictures of Chinese historical people, where the teacher’s content knowledge about history is blended with fun ideas from learners. Evelyn Coffey (University of Hawai‘i at Mānoa) & Reed Riggs (Brigham Young University – Hawai‘i)
